Instructs a Young Man From Oneida in the First Principles of Putting a Campaign "Labor Movement" on a Paying Basis-He Knows the Ropes Himself.

The mystery of the whyness and whatforness of an organization called "The New York State Labor League" has been cleared up. There may be some persons so ill informed as never to have heard of "The New York State Labor League." For the benefit of those benighted ones it may be stated that, masquerading under a name that would indicate that it had some real connection with real labor, it has hired out to the Republican State committee and Governor-Chairman Odell, with headquarters at 121 Fifth avenue.

The building in which the organization does business is Wallace's Hotel, which has been there so long as to be almost a land-"The New York State Labor League spreads itself out in a back room of the hotel. one flight up. From documents sent out in its name it appears that one John F. Dobbs is the president and George Langhorst is the secretary. Its particular business just now is to inform the labor unions of the State that Odell is the great and good friend of labor and that Odell's man, Higgins, has a record of good turns to labor unions that's all wool and a yard wide. It hasn't even a remote affiliation with a recognized labor organization and is pretty cordially denounced by the president of Typographical Union No. 6.

The Democratic State committee has taken an amused interest in the New York State Labor League for several days. According to the stories that floated into the Hoffman House, President Dobbs insisted that there was absolutely no connection between his organization and the Republican State committee. Indeed, he insisted, the New York State Labor League had no connection with anything but labor and the toiling masses.

A young man who holds down a chair at the league's headquarters had a different notion about the organization. He told something about the league on Wednesday, evidently without first comparing notes with Dobbs.

The young man, in the most delightfully ingenuous fashion, said:

You see this is a part of the Republican State committee work. We send out the labor pamphlet from here. The organization is political, but the members are labor union men. Both Mr. Dobbs and Mr. Langerst belong to unions, Dobbs's union being Typographical Union No. 6."

But the real thing in the way of information about the New York State Labor League got to Democratic State headquarters, with a young man from Oneida county, who said he came to town looking for a job from the labor bureau connected with Democratic State headquarters. He drifted into the Hoffman House yesterday afternoon and was surprised to learn that he was not expected. He didn't appear to just like his reception and remarked:

"They're a darned sight more cordial down to the Republican labor headquarters."

"How do you know?" he was asked.
"Playing both ends against the middle?"

"No. I ain't." was the reply, "but I got in there by mistake a little while ago, and I met a nice man, who said his name was Dobbs and that he was the president of the New York State Labor League." with a young man from Oneida county,

"Now, the greatest political mystery of the cay will be cleared up," remarked a Democratic sage. "Tell us some more about Pobbs and his league."

"Why, there aim t much to tell," replied the man from Oneida. "I was just waiking along up Fifth avenue, and I saw a sign down here a piece that had something about a labor union on it. I been told the Democratic labor bureau was near the Fifth Avenue Hotel, so I walked in. I saw a lot of Higgins and Odell pictures, however, and I told a man I guessed I was in wrong.

He asked me what I was looking for, and I told him I was looking for a job. I was told up home I could get from the Democratic labor folks, and I d come down to see about it.

"Come right in and sit down,' says he, as polite as could be. Then he gave me some good advice."
"What did Dobbs advise you?" asked a Democratic warherse.

"He said that he knew what it, was to be

He said that he knew what it, was to be a stranger in a strange place, and then, says he. 'You see, these labor bureaus in campaign time are backed by the State committees of the two parties. Democrats and Republicans are just alike that way. Now, you say you can't afford to work down here for nothing. Well, you go right up to the Hoffman House and you see the head of the labor bureau there, and tell him I sent you. Tell him you come from Dobbs. I know him well.

"Then you say to him like this: 'I can't afford to play politics down here just for my health. I've got to have some money and I've got to have it now.' You see I've been through a few campaigns, and I know the ropes. You tell him you're under expense at your hotel and for meals, carfare and so on and you've got to have money. Don't let him get away from that. Make him put you next to some one who can ircduce right away."

"Goad!" avalaimed one of the Demo-

"Good!" exclaimed one of the Demo-"Good!" exclaimed one of the Democratic politicians. "Dobbs certainly does know the ropes for fair. Bet his Uncle Benny couldn't give him the finger. But don't stop. Give us some more of Dobbs." "Well, he went on talking to me in a nice, friendly way, like this: 'After you've been fixed with ready money, you tell him you want a definite understanding, with a definite man, under which you'll get your salary once a week. Or, what's better the him give you a note to some your salary once a week. Or, what's better yet, have him give you a note to somebody, telling that person that you're connected with the labor bureau and to give you anything you want. Better get something like that if you can.' "That's what you had better," said one of the interested listeners. "You go right upstairs and get one of those. Say, that man Dobbs is a wonder! He ought to be taken in as manager of the grocery shop. He's one of Benny's own."

The man from Oneida wandered on and up the elevator looking for the man with the carte blanche.

A little further inquiry brought out the

the carte blanche.

A little further inquiry brought out the facts that both Dobbs and Langhorst are members of Typographical Union No. 6.
Langhorst works in Brooklyn and lives at 148 South Fourth street. In 1902 he was the Republican Assemblyman from the Fifth Brooklyn district. He was asked last night about the league of which he is the advertised secretary and he said:

"I haven't anything to say about it.

"I haven't anything to say about it.
"I haven't anything to say about it.
You see Dobbs. I won't talk unless I see him."

Many labor union men said last night
that they never heard of the New York State Labor League and that it had no connection with any recognized union.
President P. H. McCormick of Typographicel Union No. 6 said:

eal Union No. 6 said: "Our organization has absolutely nothing to do with the New York State Labor League and does not recognize it in any way. Our union would not lend itself to any scheme to further the interest of any political party. I believe Dobbe's concern is simply a paper organization made yet of a few paper organization, made up of a few nen who want to try to get some political

From another source it was learned that Dobbs lives in Abe Gruber's district and got some of his political acumen from that active preacher of Odellism.

Brooklyn, was a complainant in the Gates avenue court, yesterday, against his former client, Jacob Melzer, 40 years old, a tailor, of Blake avenue and Christopher street. and Samuel Fottenof, 25 years old, of 81 Osborne street, who, he alleged, held him up and attempted to rob him on Tuesday night. According to the story told by Lawyer Goldstein in the Gates avenue court, Melzer had some trouble in a civil court several days ago. He retained Goldstein giving him a $10 retainer. When the case came up the lawyer lost. His client immedi-ately demanded the return of the fee. This was refused.

On Tuesday Melzer and one of his workmen. Fottenof, the complaint charges, waylaid the lawyer, and while one held him the other attempted to search him, declaring that they meant to get the fee. Goldstein broke away and swore out a warrant for the arrest of both men.
When Court Officer Howard attempted to serve the warrants he was met at the door of the tailor shop by a score of workmen. He pushed his way in and arrested Fottenof. Melzer was nowhere to be seen. Howard started for the door, holding his prisoner by the collar, when a shower of flat irons, ironing boards, shears and other missiles fell over him.

GIRL ACCUSES DRUGGIST. Says Minden, Who May Be Pill Case Man,

Performed Illegal Operation. Anna Lawson, 22 years old, a salesgirl, employed in a Broadway department store, was removed from her boarding house, at 239 West Twenty-first street, last night, to Flower Hospital. She is suffering from the effects of a criminal operation.

Policeman Hallihan of the West Twentieth street station was on post in front of the boarding house when a young woman approached him and said:

"There is a young girl in there who is very sick and in need of hospital treatment." Hallihan went into the house and found Anna Lawson in an apparently serious condition. He summoned an ambulance Before being removed from the house, the girl was questioned by Policeman Hallihan. She said that the operation had been performed three weeks ago by a druggist named Minden, who has a store at 334 Eighth avenue, and that the operation took place in a room in the rear of the store. The girl refused to give the name of the man who is responsible for her condition. Hallihan reported the case at the West Twentieth street station, and a search was made for Druggist Minden. He was not at his store, nor at his home, 230 East Sixtyninth street. Detective Martin Kehoe was stationed at the door of Minden's home with orders to arrest the druggist on eight. The girl also was made a prisoner in Flower Hospital.

PARSON SENT LOYE LETTERS

PRETENDED TO BE A GIRL AND GOT MONEY FROM MEN.

That Is the Charge Against the Rev. Homer L. Mckinney, Under Arrest in Pittsburg-California Victims on the Way East to Marry Him Compare Notes.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 13.-The Rev. Homer L. McKinney, for years one of the best known evangelists in the Erie Methodist Conference but for some time past the proprietor of a crayon portrait establishment at Freeport. Pa., was committed to jail this evening by United States Commissioner Lindsay to await accourt hearing. He is charged with using the mails to defraud.

According to the postal authorities Mo-Kenny has been passing himself off as two girls, and has been mailing violent love letters to California farmers; has even become engaged to two of them and has collected money for a wedding dress from each. Post office inspectors J. H. Wardle of Philadelphia and United States Deputy Marshal William Henry of Pittsburg made Annie Hall and Mary Roberts, they say are the aliases under which the Parson made his love. William Tilly and J. H. Cuff, ranchmen of Eureka, Cal., are the two victims who appear on the surface. They are each engaged to marry the Rev. Homer McKinney, for he has not had time to release them since the post office inspect ors got him to-day. When arrested this evening he had little to say.

One year ago McKinney was in California and there met many well-to-do farmers, including Tilley and Cuff. He was their guest for some time. Soon after he returned to the East, both Tilley and Cuff began to receive letters written in a feminine hand saying the writer had been referred to the one addressed by the Rev. Mr. McKinney. The writer was evidently a shy young thing who wanted to know s omething about the West. Cuff's letter was signed by "Annie;"

Tilley's, "Mary." Each man kept his love business to himself. Soon a request was sent East from the ranch for a picture, and it came, one to each man who received i unknown to the other. It was that of a beautiful young woman.

The next mail east carried a proposal of marriage from each of the farmers. They were both accepted. Annie would take Cuff for better or worse; Mary would take Tilley. But the letter received by each spoke of her poverty. She could not come to him without money, and each sent $50 to the girl of his choice and it ended

Last month both Cuff and Tilley, believing they had been duped, decided to come East and look up the girl who had stolen their hearts and also their $50 notes They met on the train and their story came out. Each was coming East to be married. They compared notes and found each carried the same picture. They had received identical notes. They got off the train and went to the farm and telegraphed to Washington. The Post Office authorities say Mckinney has fully two

WON'T TOLERATE BAD LANGUAGE. Police Sergeant Said to Have Criticised

McAvoy Permitted to Resign. Deputy Police Commissioner Lindsley had ninety policeman before him for trial yesterday at Police Headquarters. Among hem were Inspector Albertson of The Bronx and Capt. Ferris of the Tremont station. Both of them were charged with neglect of duty in not detecting an alleged poolroom in Capt. Ferris's precinct. Neither the inspector nor the captain was ready for trial. The case was adjourned until next Wednesday. Sergt. Albert W. McDonald of the East Twenty-second street station was charged with using language uncomplimentary to ioner McAvov. Rounds-Deputy Com man Ryan at Police Headquarters tele phoned to the East Twenty-second street station house on Oct. 6 that Patrolman Anthony F. Muldoon of that precinct had been ordered to the property clerk's office during the illness of another patrolman on duty there. "He is a fine dub to be put on such a job." said Sergt. McDonald, according to the testimony at the trial.

"It is by direction of Second Deputy Commissioner McAvoy," was the reply. Then, according to Ryan, the sergeant made a very discourteous remark about Mr. McAvoy. Ryan promptly reported the matter to Sergt. Russell, who called Mc-Donald to the phone and asked if he had Donald to the phone and asked if he had made the remark.

"Yes," came the reply, "I always say what I feel."

McDonald is 57 years old. He has been on the police force for twenty-seven years, and most of that time he has been a sergeant. He has been on trial on charges before. He denied to Commissioner Lindsley yesterday that he had made any remarks about McAvoy, and said that he really considered Muldoon an excellent officer. He had even helped him to get an honorable mention. The evidence against the sergeant, however, was too strong, and Mr. Lindsley found him guilty.

"The one thing that influences me in your favor is your age and your length of

Mr. Lindsley found him guilty.

"The one thing that influences me in your favor is your age and your length of service," said Mr. Lindsley. "If you were a younger man I should already have marked the papers 'dismissed.' You have been a long time on the force. When a man gets old and grayhaired he gets restive. I think that the police force would restive. I think that the police force would not be injured if you were to retire. I will reserve decision and suggest to you that you make application for retirement. Mind, this is not a threat, but I will not give a decision until I know what you propose to do."

"I'm an old man and I am not guilty,". said McDonald. "Give me time to think "I'll give you until next Monday," said the Deputy Commissioner. "If there is one thing more than another that this depart-ment will not tolerate it is criticism of a ment will not tolerate it is criticism of a superior officer by a subordinate and ungentlemanly language to him.

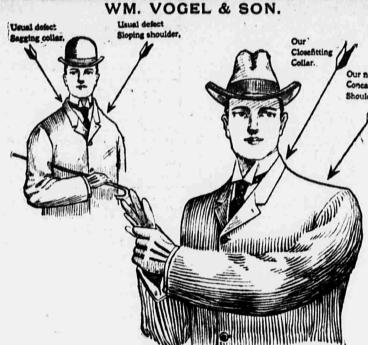

Last week Mr. Lindsley fined Policeman Wagner ten days pay for using exceedingly bad language to Inspector Schmittberger over the telephone.

A letter from William Lloyd Garrison was also read, and resolutions were adopted denouncing the cruelties, tyrannies and usurpations of the Czar's Government and expressing sympathy with the oppressed people of Russia, especially those who are struggling in all proper ways to secure for themselves liberty. The resolutions also urged the organization in every city and town of the friends of Russian freedom. A collection was taken up to aid in the work of liberating exiles who have been sent to Siberia for political offences.

GLADYS TREMAINE WENT TO LEGAL AID SOCIETY.

Precocious Girl of Fourteen Objected to Life With Only Parent She Knew, Who Is a Singer, in Bad Health-Mrs. Whitney Had Her While Cops Searched. Gladys Winona Tremaine, whose disappearance on Friday last was made known on Monday, by her mother, Mrs. Mildred Tremaine, was found yesterday at 211 East Fifteenth street, the home of Mrs. Rosalie Loew Whitney, counsel for the Legal Aid Society. The child was not kidnapped, as Mrs. Tremaine feared, but left her mother of her own volition. Gladys is in her fourteenth year. She is described as a handsome child of unusual intelligence and precocity. At one of the hotels where she and her mother had stayed, she became acquainted with a the Fifth Avenue Hotel yesterday aftergentleman who told her to call upon him n case she was ever in trouble. When the child made up her mind to leave her mother. she went to him, and he advised her to consult the Legal Aid Society. Last Thursday Gladys went to the society's office at 239 Broadway and saw Mrs. Whitney. Mrs. Whitney said last night that the child told her that when her mother had money, instead of applying it to their needs, she spent it in other ways. The girl said she had no recollection of her father. Her mother, she stated, had been a singer, but for some time owing to an attack of pleurisy. She said it was true that she had been in a convent school at Fort Lee, but not since April. '

She and her mother spent the summer at a hotel in the Catskills. Since then, she said they had lived at numerous hotels in this city, and among others mentioned the Vendome, Vanderbilt, Murray Hill and St. Denis. She and her mother, she said, had spent one entire night and part of another in the waiting room at the Grand Central Station. The clothing she had on, she said, was all that she possessed, and she had worn it since August, sometimes she had worn it since August, sometimes sleeping in it.

On Friday Mrs, Whitney called on Mrs. Tremaine at the Astor House, where she was then stopping. Mrs. Tremaine spoke most affectionately of her daughter. She told of her illness, but said she was fully recovered from its effects and expected soon to get an engagement. Mrs. Whitney says she paid Mrs. Tremaine's hotel bill and said she would investigate her case. Soon after she returned to her office. Mrs. Whitney said, Gladys called and said she had been to see Dr. James Porter Fiske of 1690 Broadway, to whom she had told her story. She was determined not to return to her mother. She said she felt sure that Mr. Charles Avery, proprietor of the Hotel Castleton at St. George, Staten Island, where she and her mother once stopped, would take care of her, and she went to him.

Mrs. Tremaine reported the child's disappearance to her lawyers, House, Grossman & Vorhaus, who placed the case in the hands of Inspector McClusky. When the news of the girl's disappearence was published on Tuesday, Mrs. Whitney took her to her own home, where Detective Day found her last evening. The child's clothing was in the laundry and as Mrs. Whitney promised to produce her in the Children's Court, this morning, Gladys was left where she was. Mrs. Whitney will ask to have her committed to the custody of some responsible person until the case has been thoroughly investigated. Mrs. Tremaine is now stopping at the Bartholdi.

SLATE MADE UP LAST WINTER

WHILE ODELL FED PARTY WITH OPEN CONVENTION TALK.

figgins Was the Sure Thing Play All the Time, but Promise of Senatorship to Black Was Only an Intimation Before

Saratoga-Platt Not in the Game. Republicans from up the State were at noon and got to talking about the announcement that Governor-Chairman Odell promised at Saratoga the United States Senatorship next January to Frank S. Black.

"We all know," said one of these up State Republicans, "that the announcement was correct in every line and detail. The trouble, though, is that THE SUN has not gone far enough in this matter. The present condition of affairs, so far as the Odell State ticket is concerned, began away back last winter at Albany. The Governor took Mr. Black, Mr. Brackett, Mr. Littauer, Mr. Warren, Mr. Payn and Justice Nathan L. Miller into his confidence at that time. It was then agreed that the play should be made for an open convention and Frank W. Higgins was to be the candidate. He was not to be shoved to the front very much, because at that time and later on there was a good deal of talk about Elihu Root, and all the Republicans in the State wanted Root. But Gov. Odell's newspaper in Newburgh began a series of attacks on Elihu Root, and kept them up until late in July.

"These attacks on Root greatly disturbed the Republicans all through the State, and, of course, we could not attribute them to anybody except the Governor. We had a right also to assume that they were part of the game which Gov. Odell last winter at Albany began to play with ex-Gov. Black. Senator Brackett, Representative Littauer, Louis F. Payn, William C. Warren and Justice Miller. Some of these people got to talking about this matter last winter. and Senator John Raines was let into the scheme, but nobody said a word to Speaker Nixon, and Nixon's feathers had to be smoothed down at Saratoga. "But the fact that Gov. Odell decided on Frank W. Higgins as his candidate for Governor last winter at Albany has been known to some of us for six months. At first the game was kept very quiet. Then others began to talk about it, but the great secret was kept from Speaker Nixon, and it was funny to see the Speaker at Saratoga. He was all in the dark until the game was made known to him. The Sun's account of how Gov. Odell promised Mr. Flack the United States Senatorship should have gone back to last winter, when Gov. Odell arranged for the nomination of Mr. Higgins and only then intimated to Mr. Black what he positively promised at Saratoga.

"Some of us," the Republicans continued, "have told Mr. Depew about this matter, but he doesn't want to believe it. Of course if Gov. Odell can than Mr. Black to the rear at the proper time and take the United States Senatorship himself he will, and we all know that and we have also told Mr. Depew that this was the programme, but Mr. Depew does not wish to helieve it. ernor last winter at Albany has been known all know that and we have also told Mr. Depew that this was the programme, but Mr. Depew does not wish to believe it. Mr. Platt knew nothing of the game that was arranged last winter between Mr. Odell and the Republicans named. We doubt if he knows it now. We doubt also if he would believe it if the evidence were thrust before him, and yet we all know that Senator Platt greatly desires the reelection of Senator Depew." Bohan's Annual Fine.
